

Summer Programme 2026 / 25 June - 15 July

Mental Health, Youth and Society

With a focus on public health approaches, this course dives into the topics of health promotion, prevention, and intervention, specific to mental health and addictive behaviors.

In an interactive classroom with a problem-based learning approach, you will explore the ways we can recover from the global health crisis in an international and interdisciplinary classroom, paying particular attention to mental health in disadvantaged and marginalised groups. This three-week summer programme is appropriate for graduate students with interests in psychology, sociology, education, public health and medicine.
